

In Memory of Anthony Huggins

A yearbook is a coalition of memories. To each person a memory could be happy or painful. This year's yearbook will bring back many happy remembrances, but it will also bring back a painful one.

On November 14, 1987 Anthony Huggins passed away early in the morning. He had fought against lupus, but had lost. He was only 18 years old and a 3-year senior. His death came as a shock to friends and faculty alike.

As Christians, sometimes we tend to forget that all of us have struggles with our relationship with Christ. Not many people knew Anthony had morning devotions, which he had even before he attended Blue Mountain Academy. One subject he felt very strongly about was the Second Coming of Christ. He told many of his friends that he felt it was quite near. His walk with the lord became closer. During his illness he kept encouraging his father. He would tell him that he was in Jesus' hands now, so don't worry. Anthony was also an encouragement to his friends. He would listen to their problems, something a true friend would do.

The death of someone who is close to you is always painful, but even more so when it's someone your own age. Death seems so final, but someday soon we will see Anthony at the gates of Heaven. In his memory, the Echoes Staff of 1987-88 dedicate this page.

THIS ONE'S FOR YOU!

She has been the motivation and inspiration behind years of musical growth at BMA. She's taught us a new meaning to the word "practice." She has been a demanding taskmistress, longsuffering encouragement, bubbly enthusiast and driving perfectionist. Besides a history of excellent pianists and first-rate choirs, she has now added the La Sonnette Ensemble to her impressive repertoire. Above all, she is loved and respected by her students for her loving Christian influence.

For 29 years of unfailing service, it is but a small thing for us to dedicate this year's Echoes to Mrs. Nancy S. Edison.

Principal's Message

This year we have all celebrated the 200th birthday of The Constitution. This celebration has spilled over into our school year as we have given honor to this document that has afforded us so much freedom.

There is no question that the Lord has guided in the affairs of this nation! We are greatly privileged to live in the United States of America and should be justly proud of our country. Have we used this freedom — this religious freedom — to accomplish what God desires? He wants us to proclaim our heavenly citizenship, sharing with others the opportunity to gain this ultimate freedom!

Let us keep in mind that America, as well as the rest of the world, is in enemy hands; and Satan's power is being allowed to increase. Soon God will release Satan to freely do all his work of ruin on this earth, and then Jesus will come to rescue His children!

How many times will you peruse the pages of this yearbook? How long will you use this book to recall the special memories of the 1987-88 school year? Did the times we spent studying, working, playing, preparing for banquets — the hard times and the pleasant times — shorten our wait for Christ's return? This has truly been a year of opportunity; but, unless we have realized the ultimate freedom found only in a relationship with Jesus and have used that relationship to hasten His coming, we have missed the real value of our year together.

Let's take advantage of our freedom to gain and share heaven's greater freedom! Let's lose track of birthdays and enter eternity! After two million years, 200 won't be so great!

... "You will know the truth, and the truth will set you free . . . If the Son sets you free, you will be free indeed." John 8:32, 34

Sincerely,

Freedom. It represents something different to each individual. But, so many times we take for granted our freedoms.

This year the people of the United States had an opportunity to really understand what freedom is all about. All over America people were celebrating the 200th birthday of the Constitution. This document signifies freedom. It gives us the right to be free!

For 200 years it has stood the test of time. The men who wrote the Constitution looked beyond their own time, and looked ahead into the future, into our time.

Today, many nations are restricting the freedoms of their people. We here in America still retain them.

Each person, whether black or white, citizen or immigrant, rich or poor has the right to worship as they please. Not only is freedom of religion granted to anyone, but also freedom of speech and of the press. It would be hard to imagine life without these freedoms that seem so basic, but that we take so much for granted.

Within the dividing sections are essays that were written by a student from each class. They were the best ones chosen from each class and one was chosen as the best out of all of them. As you read them you will find them to be each students' idea about freedom.

Freedom. What does it mean to you?

Our Constitution is the foundation of our government. Its concepts of limited government provide the necessary guidelines for a true democracy. The Bill of Rights which constitutes the first 10 amendments of our constitution is an example of public representation and voice against unjusts performed against any individual residing in the United States of America. These rights are not only guaranteed to the white man, but to any individual — rich or poor, black or white, Catholic or Protestant — these rights are for the people.

The forefathers of this blessed land did not realize the extent of their duty when they were commissioned the task of drawing up the document that thousands of other nations would use as the basis of their own constitutions.

Winning Essay

My father was born and raised in Indonesia and New Guinea by Dutch parents. He grew up in a foreign background and culture, learned a different language, and was taught in Dutch schools. Nevertheless, today he is a legal American citizen. Section 1 of the 14th Amendment to the Constitution states that: "All persons born or naturalized in the United States and subject to the jurisdiction thereof, are citizens of the United States and of the state wherein they reside." Not only is he free to live and work in the United States, take advantage of the opportunities available here, and enjoy the diverse American ways of life, but he is also guaranteed his rights to citizenship. The rights of every American are his rights and the Constitution grants him "the equal protection of the laws."

As an American citizen my father is well acquainted with the American system and the process of government and is an actively concerned citizen. The Constitution extends the right to vote in the 15th Amendment to him and all citizens regardless of their race, color or religion. I think that says something important about this "We the People" document that is supposed to be the enduring foundation of this nation. I believe it is saying that the voice of the individual is worth being heard, and that every person, whether immigrant or native born may have worthwhile American views.

As a native born American, my father has taught me true national pride and a deep-rooted patriotism. I feel as though those soldiers, over 200 years ago, were fighting for me also, although my ancestors were far from Americans at the time of the Revolutionary War. I am endowed with the same inalienable rights and "no state shall make or enforce any law which shall abridge" my privileges or immunities as a citizen of the United States, nor shall it "deprive any person of life, liberty or property without due process of law."

The Constitution is a protection for me and all those who are subjects in the realm of Lady Liberty. It gives every soul a voice and the courage to speak boldly. Through it we are defended from tyranny and oppression and encouraged to express an opinion.

This nation is a blend of all nations and by the Constitution every person can be an American in his own right, and his culture shall contribute to the uniqueness of the United States. Hereby, whether I am born in Pennsylvania or Portugal: this is my country!

Current Events

This September Pope John Paul II made his second trip to the United States. This pilgrimage of his was much more turbulent than his first one in 1979. The subjects that he had to deal with were basically social issues. The American Catholics (his "feistiest flock") wanted reasons to why abortion, divorce, birth control and homosexuality was frowned upon by the Church.

The Pope's visit made a definite stir in the country. Some of the public were protesting that his visit went against the Constitution by mixing church and state affairs together, while the other half were anxious to hear what the Pope's response would be to their "conforming lifestyles." The Pope realized that the Catholic Church in the United States was dissatisfied, but he stood firm and did not give into compromise of the Catholic Church's beliefs.

Judge Robert H. Bork, a nominee for the United States Supreme Court, was strongly opposed by many Americans. His views on controversial issues made him a debatable figure. For example, he felt that states may ban abortions since there is no constitutional right listed, and women, unlike racial minorities, have no constitutional protections against laws that discriminate against them.

A few other issues that he had strong opinions about were a person's privacy, church/state relations, the death penalty, race, and free press and free speech. His views were based upon identifying the "care" of the values expressed by various constitutional provisions. Mr. Reagan pushed for Bork's nomination but the Senate Judiciary Committee voted down his name.

President Daniel Ortega Saavedra of Nicaragua and the archbishop of Managua, Cardinal Miguel Obando Y Bravo, were in Washington this November to talk about a possible cease-fire. A few weeks earlier Ortega had unexpectedly agreed to conduct unofficial cease-fire talks with the Contras, using Cardinal Obando as an intermediary.

Last August Speaker of the House, Jim Wright, and President Reagan made public a peace proposal, but now the White House believes that having the United State negotiating with the Sandinistas isn't in the best interest of peace. House Speaker Wright has gotten involved stating that the people of Central America need to know that a sympathetic person will listen to them, even though the White House feels that he is getting involved in business that isn't his. Many Contras and Sandinistas have been killed in this endless war, and it is time for it to be dismantled.

Liberty — A New Voice

For years I have been standing under the sun, the rain, the hail. My torch is held high day and night, season by season, raised in welcome to all who pass by my sight. I have held my pose through the years always standing tall, my height reaching toward the sun and toward the clouds. I hold the memories of all the immigrants who have passed through me to America, their cries of awe, their feelings of freedom.

Now, even after I am no longer used as a customs station, people still come to visit me, I am a piece of America's history. People have written on me, left their mark, their place in time. I am a piece of America's history.

I represent the freedom of America, the right to assemble in public, women's right, freedom of the press, freedom of speech, the right to own private property. These are only a few of the rights I represent. I hold a promise for a country that has been standing strong for 200 years and will continue to stand, I am the representative of a nation's strength. People look to me as they enter our country, looking for some kind of sign to make them feel welcome and they see me, and that I stand for brotherly love. Under my watch, I have seen blacks win equal rights, our country mature, generations come and go, new families arrive. I have also seen things I am not so proud of, the pollution, the nuclear threat, poverty, cities built too quickly, over-population, America is not a perfect country and some of our shortcomings could be rectified if we felt the spirit of our nation's leaders in our hearts, but as for now, we should praise God for our fortune to be born here in the land of freedom.

Liberty or Death

by Beth Curran

"Is life so dear, or peace so sweet, as to be purchased at the price of chains and slavery? Forbid it, Almighty God! I know not what course others may take, but as for me, give me liberty or give me death!"

When Patrick Henry proclaimed these words, I am sure he was not aware of the tremendous impact they would have on America, or what was then not even a nation, but more like a struggling people trying to free themselves from the chains and slavery of England.

Liberty, what exactly did it mean to the men and women who founded our nation, and has its meaning changed for us as a nation today?

Freedom was so precious to our forefathers that they were willing to give their lives, but today many Americans give so little thought to personal freedoms. Many can not even grasp as to how delicate our liberty is and unless we keep in our hearts the burning desire for liberty we might find ourselves one day without the privileges we so carelessly take for granted.

Does it take war and death for our country to remember the primary reason for its existence? As Franklin D. Roosevelt said when the United States entered World War II, "Every man should be able to enjoy freedom of speech, freedom of worship, freedom from want, and the freedom from fear." These are important, but liberty means even so much more than that!

Could you make that claim as one inspired man did so long ago? Have thousands of American men and women died, so that we today might take for granted the security of a free nation?

In conclusion I say, as the words incised on the Liberty Bell, we must as a people, "proclaim liberty throughout the land, unto all the inhabitants thereof."

"How delicate our liberty is."

The Constitution and Me

by Vivienne Lettsome

"The Constitution." A word said many times, but is it just a word or is it really a blessing to the people of the United States? One we rarely take time to appreciate. It's what our country and our everyday lives are based on. Look at nature. The trees, flowers, sky, creatures of the earth and heaven. Always seemingly taken for granted until something happens to any of it. Then we see how much we would miss it if it was taken from us. Life, a precious gift from God always taken for granted until we come so close to losing it.

Picture this: May, 1787. Fifty-five delegates from all the thirteen states, arrive in Philadelphia. After everyone is assembled together they choose George Washington as chairman. It was even said that loose dirt was spread over the cobblestone street in front of the statehouse to cut down the noise of the horses and carriages. Important decisions had to be made. All of the delegates plus other famous well respected men sat in a closed stifling room of the statehouse day after day. I can see them. Slumped in their chairs, heads in hands, or fist of chins worrying. Thinking, trying to decide, agree on something. Wanting what was best for the "people." The final product — a masterpiece, in their eyes and ours. Probably written and rewritten a hundred times over to make it just perfect.

The Constitution, to me, never really meant that much until I grew up and began to see everything in a different light. I was finally gaining wisdom. Freedom, to me, was like a bird being let out of its cage to fly away. Parents letting you do whatever you wanted or just the wind. Just like I never appreciated my childhood when I was a child, I always wanted to grow up. Now that I've grown up, many times I've wished I had my childhood days back.

Since I've been in American History class this year, I've been thinking more about the past of America. Trying to visualize in some way what it might have been like. If I had a chance to go back in time in America, I would choose that time to go back to. It always stirred my interest because to me that was the actual beginning of America.

When I was in grade school, every morning before class started we always had to pledge allegiance to the flag of the United States of America. It isn't till now that I think of what the words actually meant. In the last sentence of the pledge it says "with freedom and justice for all." In the song "My Country tis of Thee," it says "let freedom reign." The "Star Spangled Banner" says "land of the free." What is freedom? One of Webster's definitions says "liberty." What is liberty? Webster's says "power to act according to one's natural rights as an individual; induce freedom of act, speech, rights, etc." The Constitution makes clear certain rights we have. Freedom of speech is one. Along with freedom of religion, press, assembly, and petition.

Try to imagine for a minute what your life would be like if you didn't have these freedoms. Freedom of speech means I can disagree with anything anyone says, even the President. I can disagree publicly, too. Freedom of religion is very important to me. The freedom to worship on Sabbath and go to church. Actually I feel that's a God given right anyway. The Constitution means freedom, liberty, equal rights, and the right to the pursuit of happiness.

If each of us had the chance to live in another country for awhile and not have these rights, we would probably appreciate our country more for what it is: "A land of the free!"

Our forefathers left us a great gift — the Constitution.

As a United States citizen, I am guaranteed certain rights. Because of the Constitution these rights are protected and insured until I choose to give them up.

Coming to Blue Mountain Academy was one such choice. When I made this decision I left behind many freedoms. I was soon immersed into a totalitarian society. This society dictates aspects of my lifestyle every day I am under its control. Daily I am reminded of those rights I gave up and the freedoms I left behind.

Not all implications made above are derogatory. Many opportunities arise under totalitarian rule.

I am satisfied, while young, to be protected somewhat from a cruel world. A sheltered life is much easier to live and when one doesn't realize alternatives, it may promote a happy environment.

The chance to live out from under parents' care is much appreciated in many cases. There are not many places as idealistic for a 15-year-old to live if they leave their parents home. In fact, many thoughts of alternatives are quite unmentionable.

A chance to live a rather choice-free life has its advantages when one is young. In a day at Blue Mountain, the largest decision one might make is what to wear. In many instances this decision is even lessened by the existence of the current dress code. The depletion of decisions promotes a stress-free environment. In such an environment decision making is done by those who have lived longer and thought more.

One must realize after living awhile without certain rights one might appreciate the freedoms of life more. So many take their rights for granted. Careful plans for these rights were laid in the Constitution. Unlike other forms of government, our democracy will last a lot longer for growing individuals, because we are governed by a living constitution.

This time is ours
for as long as it's meant to last.
Let's pray that time doesn't move too fast.
When you love,
how quickly the moments pass.

This time is ours
and no one can take it away.
Why live our lives for yesterday?
Our love is here to stay.

How great it is when someone discovers there really is a time for loving others.
It lifts your spirits right up to the sky.
Let's pray that this feeling will never die.

This time is ours
and we're only at the start.
Maybe one day we'll have to part.
Since you and I can't read the stars, let's be glad that This Time Is Ours.

Four years ago the class of 1988 came to this campus to join the student body of Blue Mountain Academy. Since then, many changes have taken place among the class as a whole as well as each individual member. This year's Senior class is no longer the same class that first came onto campus as Freshmen.

Changes began the moment they arrived. As they matured individually, they matured as a class. Even though old classmates parted, new ones arrived each year and unity prevailed. They continued to grow closer together through success and in spite of failure. All through the years at Blue Mountain Academy, the class has grown both spiritually, and mentally, as well as physically.

Now as the class of 1988 looks toward graduation, they are anxious to move on to what they have prepared for.

I distinctly recall the bewilderment I felt as a Freshman. Searching for the Biology room, struggling to get my locker open, and marveling at the Seniors, wondering how I was going to survive.

Well, here I am, a four-year Senior. I cringe as I look back at my Freshman picture when I thought to myself, “I’ll never look as funny as my parents did.” Guess what?!

Reflecting over these past four years, it saddens me to realize how many of my fellow classmates have come and gone. Out of a class of 62 only 27 remain. It’s difficult to believe that students I attended classes with my Freshman year, who I naturally assumed I would graduate with, are gone. The security I have felt of being in a familiar place is torn away at graduation only to reveal a certain excitement of what my future holds.

From Biology to Anat/Phys; from making fruit salad to filing papers; from being a follower to being a leader; I have grown tremendously and experienced the numerous afflictions of adolescence. But, I must say I am truly happy to close this chapter of my life. I have made many friendships, which I hate to see separated. And the memory of my four-year stay at Blue Mountain will remain forever!

“This Time Is Ours”

Tradition was followed once again this Autumn when the Seniors presented Senior Recognition to friends and parents. The weekend was full of tremendous talent, whether it was through music, speech or participation.

The speaker chosen for the weekend was Pastor Charles Byrd. Pastor Byrd was the Assistant Men's Dean their Freshman and Sophomore years. The weekend proved to be a memorable experience.

Blue Mountain Academy, this year, made a new and important addition to the academic standards and that was to include the work program in the academical program. The administration felt that the experience and knowledge learned on the job, and in a work atmosphere is vital and is as important as regular studies and classes.

The jobs vary from Library workers to Harris Pine Mill workers. This year a new off-campus industry was added and that was the mushroom farm.

The students will now graduate with job experience that will enable them in their future to further their education and work towards jobs they enjoy.

The Cafeteria

Think of a place where you do most of your talking, socializing, tell the most jokes, and think up the worst of schemes. Let me guess — you're thinking of (no not the bathroom) the cafeteria.

The atmosphere is relaxing, except for those who are running late and have to inhale their food and rush off.

Many students get there early and stay until the last minute so that they have extra time to chat with friends.

The view from the cafeteria is perhaps the nicest on campus, with its windows stretching the length of the room. Students can watch others walking the campus to other destinations, amid the springtime flowers or the Christmas-time lights.

All in all, the meals at BMA make for a nice break in the day's hectic schedule.

This extracurricular program starts with the ground school and then some persistent students continue and strive for their private pilots license. Many students are graduating from Blue Mountain and are flying to higher places.

The Business Education department offers something a little more to the students who want to learn and have experience in various secretarial skills. At the end of four years a student with all courses completed can graduate, along with the normal diploma, with a Secretarial Career Certificate, which will increase career opportunities.

La Sonnette Ensemble

Practice ...
... more practice ...

Tracy and Beth remain attentive during performances.
... makes perfect.

This year a third touring group was added to Blue Mountain Academy. La Sonnette Ensemble was well received by the students and the many surrounding churches and academies that it performed at. This can be accredited to the newness of the bells and their beautiful, unique sound. This bell choir also holds special meaning to Mrs. Nancy Edison, who directs the choir, because the bells were dedicated in memory of her parents.

Even though this is their first year, La Sonnette Ensemble has accomplished much, and much is expected in the years to come as the group matures.

Praise

right: It's 11:24 Matt Ropka!
Wake up!

right: LA LA LA LA

As a vocal and instrumental group, Praise Ensemble's main objective is to praise and glorify God through music. The blending together of the various talents makes this group unique. Through humor, love, fun, and caring for each other, Praise Ensemble became a family. This is very important because of the three touring groups, Praise travels the most and the farthest, sharing their abilities with the surrounding communities.

Practice is the key word when it involves music. Especially in a large musical touring group such as Blue Mountain Academy's Concert Band. Many hours are spent rehearsing for concerts so that each piece will be performed "just right." Some might think that "tooting a horn" and "beating a drum" doesn't take much effort, but there is more than meets the eye. The satisfaction comes when the concert is flawless and all those hours of rehearsal seem well worth it.

Sylvan Singers

Mrs. Nancy Edison's shining cherubs rise with one sweep of her commanding hand and with another quick gesture heavenly music bursts forth from their angelic faces. The rich harmony and golden tone is the product of many hours of diligent practice. Each session finds the Sylvan Singers learning, memorizing, polishing and finetuning. Driven by a dedicated taskmistress, they quickly learn that "one more time" means at least 4 more times and that only the best is good enough. Perseverance and discipline pay off, however, and with one voice they raise joyful praise to God.

Aerial Aires

Much stretching and exercising goes on during the Aerial Aires practicing time. Many times the group separates to work on individual routines. This all pays off when the big shows come. This year the team gave a salute to the 1988 Olympic games, which was creative and fun to watch.

For the first time, the Aerial Aires took a week trip in March to all of the North Western PA SDA Schools. They did peer counseling, and performed some programs concerning drugs and alcohol.

In the beginning of the year, the Aerial Aires practiced many hours so that they could get a tape sent off to the Spectrum. They had to wait a few months, but it was worth it. In April they are off to the Spectrum, once again for another performance.

A beautiful time that was the changing point in many students lives, was when Pastor Santee came for a FOCUS week. What a powerful speaker he was as he opened our eyes to many things of our church's history and of the Second Coming of Christ. Many students had questions answered that had been on their minds for a long time. Many students were shocked when they learned about what symbols meant and how they affected our lives. Pastor Santee prayed with us, talked with us, shared with us and showed his love for us. For this we give him our warmest gratitude.

Christ

Although it was cold outside, the warmth and spirit that the students felt while Pastor Mauch was here was undeniable, and it wasn't just because he was from sunny California! From the beginning of the week his sense of humor and easy going personality put the students at ease, and they were able to open up to him with their concerns. The way he showed the students what a relationship with Christ can be like was encouraging, and made many students want the same.

What an inspirational experience it was to hear One Accord for special music. They were asked to sing during AYS meetings, Sabbath Schools, and many other events. This men's chorale group, made up of six students, love to perform and was well appreciated by their fellow students.

Kashir, a women's choral, was formed to add variety to the music program at Blue Mountain Academy. They will be remembered the most by the song sung in memory of Anthony Huggins, a special friend to many of the girls in the choir.

IT TAKES ALL SIZES, SHAPES, AND COLORS TO MAKE THE WORLD

Blue Mountain Academy is a special school, and one of the aspects of that is the people who make up the student body. Not only do the students who come to BMA bring along with them their own special talents and unique personalities, they bring different heritage and cultural backgrounds. The student body consists of such a blending of nationalities, that students learn from one another, creating understanding of how others see life.

The atmosphere at Blue Mountain is hard to copy, because it is made by the students who attend. Those students see a person of a different background as an opportunity to learn and grow. The students who reach across the barriers of country or state realize that they are the ones who receive the greatest blessing. At BMA everyone shares in common the love for friends and the feeling of being a close family on campus.

In addition to all of the meetings, there was great recreation. Students at once felt comfortable with each other and everyone participated.

BMA Leadership was a wonderful experience that the leaders of the school had. When asked what their feelings and reactions to the campout were, many students responded with "fun" or "exciting," but then quickly followed up with "many students became closer to each other and the Lord, and it helped the student body to work together as one." A positive feeling was all around and many students hoped to bring it back to share on campus.

“Where’s the beach?”

This year SA was hoping for something very different, and they achieved it. The Spring Party’s theme was simply the beach; with a boardwalk, buckets, and umbrellas. As the students layed on beach towels, they enjoyed good food served by the SA officers in concession stands lining the boardwalk. After that, the students were entertained in the gym with two skits by the SA officers and a movie.

A tree with its lights twinkling brightly, laughter all about you, and the general chaos of a party engulfed the cafe. The Student Association's Christmas Party began with the lighting of the trees in the center of campus. While everyone observed the beautiful scene, a poem was read by Laura Harner. Supper was eaten by candlelight.

For entertainment, an amusing poem was read, then Mr. Trubey played a medley of Christmas songs on the piano. The following act was the Chipmunk performance which caused many bursts of laughter. To end the program, the handbell choir performed two Christmas numbers.

Then came the beautiful walk over to the gymnasium for the movie. S.A. followed what has been made tradition by placing a Christmas tree in the Ad. Building along with many other beautiful decorations.

Many students were heard commenting on how the night had placed them in the Christmas spirit.

Here's to the Constitution!

right: As SA President, Cami Wardecke receives the "signing of the Constitution" portrait.

In November the student body celebrated the signing of the Constitution by having a Constitution day. Throughout the day, the students dressed up in red, white, and blue and many of the classes tried to have a talk or theme to honor the signing of the Constitution. They also observed a moment of silence to honor those who have died for their freedom.

The day ended with a banquet in the cafeteria where they were entertained by the bell choir and by the reading of essays on what the Constitution meant to those students.

Open House

Chatter and laughter split the air as groups of girls walked over to the Boy's Dorm to escort their dates to the Open House Banquet. The Men's Club provided the meal, entertainment, and movie. The food centered around the evening's theme, "Paradise Island." Entertainment consisted of various musical selections.

The Girl's Dorm was next on the agenda. As the couples toured the different floors, they were able to view the unique artwork that was being displayed for our pleasure. Each room was designed to add a little more variety to the tour. The gymnasium was where "Lady and the Tramp," a Walt Disney Classic, was being shown. The film was amusing and ended off the evening perfectly.

Echoes Echoes

The task is difficult, but the finished product is rewarding. Those who hold positions on the Echoes staff work hard against deadlines so the yearbook will come out on time, but don't think they are not enjoying themselves.

Trying to take candid shots without people insisting on posing is a tiring job for the photographers, but they were successful as you can well see. The rest of the staff isn't seen or heard from as much, but they were working just as hard coordinating a yearbook for you to remember your 1987-1988 school year!!

Will a college degree get you a job?

If you want a satisfying job in your field, a college degree is important—but it isn't always enough.

Employers want college graduates who've done more than read textbooks. They want people who've worked in real-life settings. People with experience.

That's why we make practicums, internships, and cooperative education a vital part of our 35 programs. Co-op students gain valuable job experience while in school. And they land better jobs after graduation.

We know how important a college degree is. We also know that experience counts, too. At CUC, you can get both.

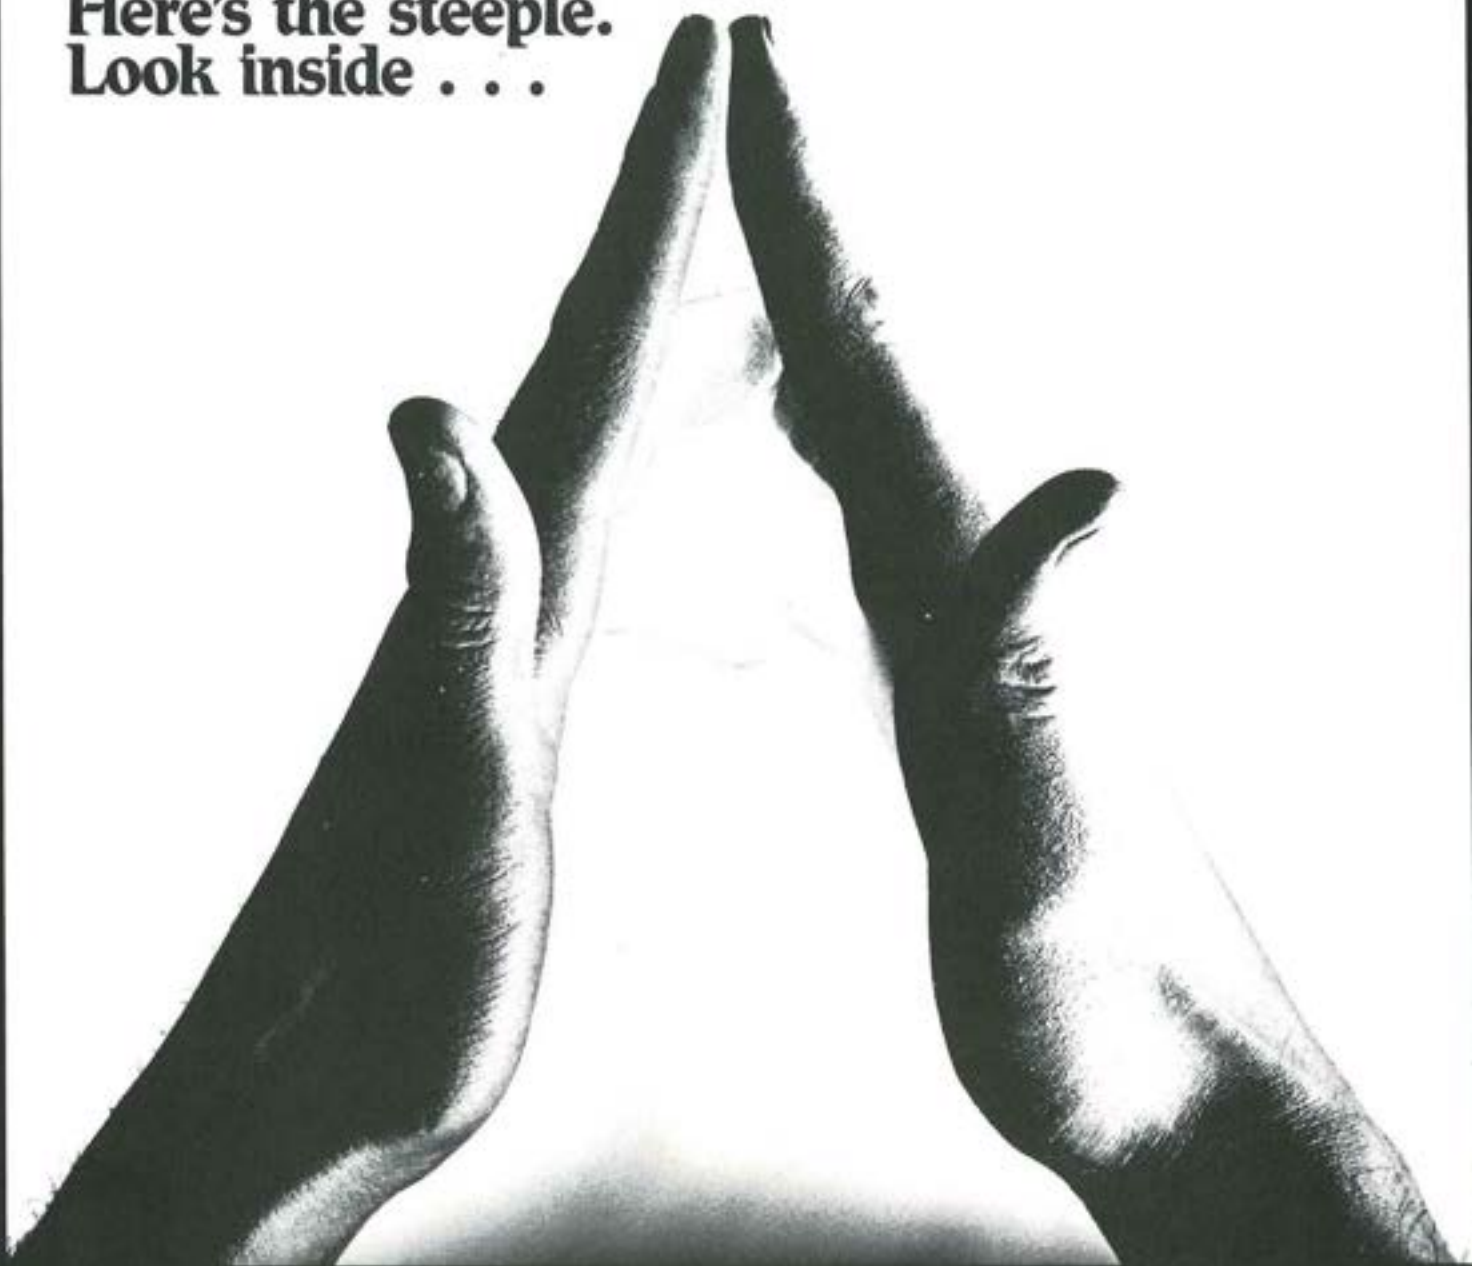

For more information about Columbia Union College, call us toll-free:

Where are the people?

Where are the people? Recent research says that as many as half of Adventist members don't attend church regularly, most because they don't feel welcome.

Think about your home church. Are some of your friends missing? This summer make your church a more attractive place for your friends to attend. Make sure they get invited to church. Welcome them. Get your youth Sabbath school to plan social events that sound exciting for young people.

Get involved in other ways at your home church this summer, too. Why not volunteer to help with Vacation Bible School? Sing or play for special music? Maybe teach a Sabbath school class for younger children?

But be a part of the home church you've missed while you're away at school.

The North American Division has adopted doubling church attendance as one of four goals in a program called Harvest 90. You can help reach that goal this summer. Attend yourself. Invite others. Make church an attractive place.

To My Best Friend, Cami:

Four years ago we began this journey. From cafeteria employment to office neighbors. I have always appreciated your sincere friendship and will always treasure the memories we made. Thank-you for all your help with the newspaper and for the little things you do, too! I'll never forget all the walks around the 2-mile loop, eating granola, staying awake all night (almost), the Nutcracker Ballet, talks with Beaver, slumber parties with Jessica, being angels with Becky, dressing in black, singing with our Von Clap siblings, garlic popcorn, camping, and singing "Take Me By the Hand" at Union Leadership. No matter where our futures lead us, let's keep in touch forever! God Bless You. I'll miss you.

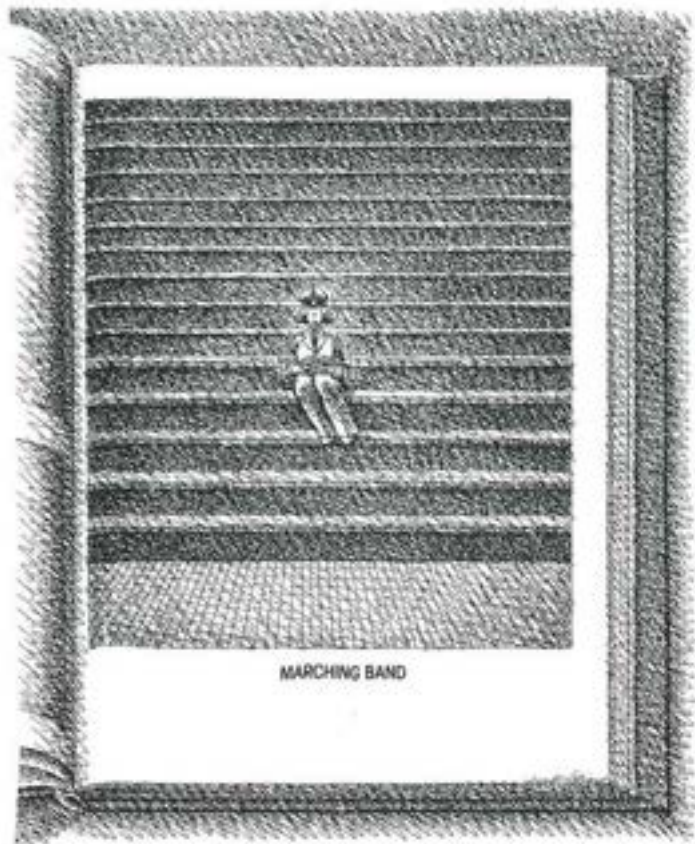

Love and Peace,
Laura

I took a piece of plastic clay
And idly fashioned it one day,
And as my fingers pressed it, still,
It bent and yielded to my will.

I came again, when days were passed,
The bit of clay was hard at last,
The form I gave it, still it bore,
But I could change that form no more.

Then I took a piece of living clay
And gently formed it, day by day
And molded with my power and art,
A young child's soft and yielding heart.

I came again when years were gone,
It was a man I looked upon.
He still that early impress bore,
And I could change it, nevermore.

Dad and I are very glad for the patience and perseverance that you had.
May God bless you as you reach for higher

(verb)

This year just wouldn't have been the same with anyone else! I don't suppose we could forget _____ . Do you think (noun)

_____ will ever _____ the _____ farm?
(noun) (verb) (adjective)

We're going to have a/an _____ summer. Which means that we'll be ready for next school year. By the way, have you thought about college?
(adjective)

I hear that Andrews University is a/an _____ (glowing adjective) place for you and me! College Days was great because

_____
(subordinate clause)

Altogether, it's been a/an _____ year. If I don't (adjective)
_____ you this summer or next year, I shall miss you more than _____ .
(verb)
(subordinate clause)

As a famous comedian, _____ , once said, (proper noun)
"Thanks for the memories."

Sincerely,

P.S. Andrews University wishes you a pleasant summer and we're hoping to see you Seniors this fall!!

"THIS TIME IS

Thanks for the memories!

"There's a sad sort of clanging from the bells in the hall." It is May 25, and final exams are over. No more rushing to chapel at 6:45 a.m., no more classes, no more tests. In four days Graduation will be here and the class of 1988 will become alumni students. From marching practice, to marching down the road of tomorrow. These times were ours and no one can take them away from our memories of Blue Mountain Academy.

As our future lies before us, the greatest comfort that could accompany the class of '88 would be in knowing that someday we will all be reunited in Heaven. Let this be our goal as we unite the world in God's circle of love. The day has come that we have to part. We'll do our best to reach the stars because time is, was, and always will be . . . ours.
