

The Rising Tide

The Seas have lifted up, O Lord, the seas have lifted up their voice; the seas have lifted up their pounding waves. Mightier than the thunder of the great waters, mightier than the breakers of the sea-- the Lord on High is mighty.

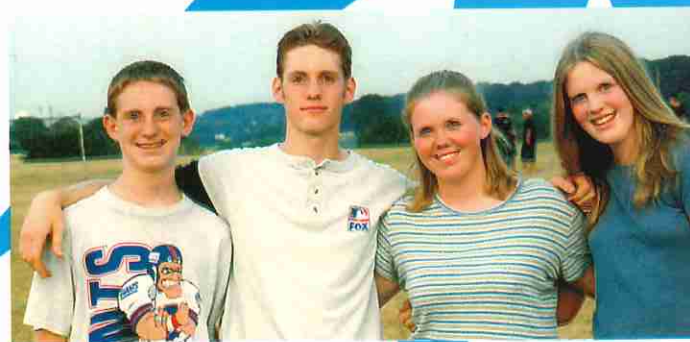

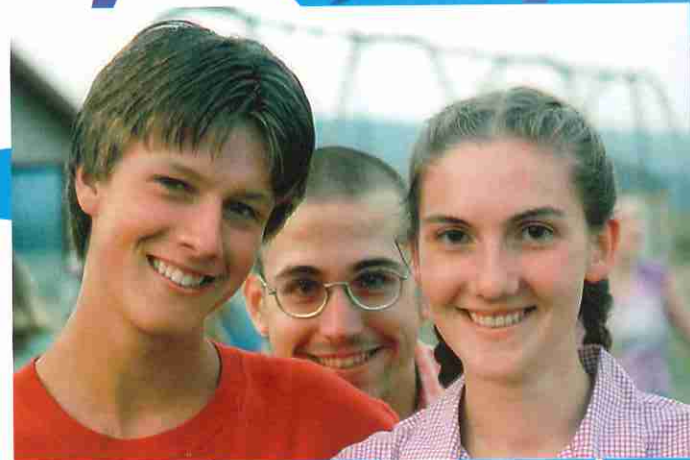

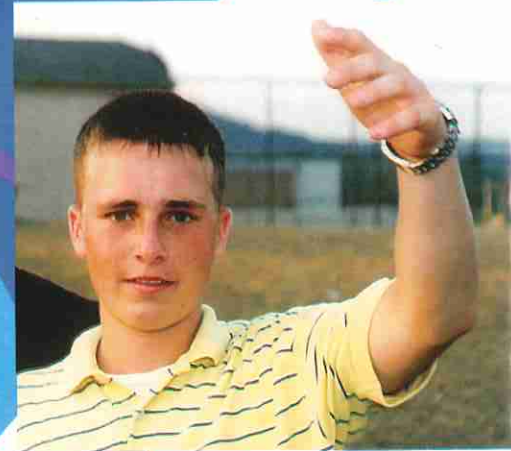

Psalm 93:3-4 NIV

Principal's Message

Mr. Hannah...

One of my favorite places is on the beach experiencing the waves rolling in-- one after another. I recently had the opportunity to sit on the beach in New Hampshire and enjoy the relaxing sounds and the soothing effects of wave after wave. It was so peaceful that I soon fell asleep. After a couple hours I awoke and realized that the tide was rising and we needed to move to higher ground or we would find ourselves quite wet.

The constant ebb and flow of the tides is one of the great mysteries to most of us. We watch the waves and realize that the water level rises for a time, only to drop a few hours later. We understand that the gravitational pull of the moon has something to do with it, but for most of us it is simply a mystery that we enjoy.

The constant pouring out of God's love is also a mystery to us. Our lives often follow the pattern of the tides - a continual up and down of selflessness and selfishness, a rising of surrender and a falling to sin. However, God's love is constant. When we stumble over the obstacles that Satan throws before us, God is there to pick us up. When we are distracted by the world and follow it's way, Jesus is there to lead us back to His path and His way. We know we don't deserve it, but it is always there.

During your years here at Blue Mountain Academy, the world has continued to sink deeper in the mire of sin. Wars have increased, we are on guard against terrorism every day, hunger and discrimination continue to plague us at every corner. The world is not getting better. However, we have a hope and it is my prayer that you have had the opportunity to meet that incredible hope, Jesus Christ, in an up-close-and-personal way. As we look to the world we see conflict and decay. As we look to God we see peace and new life. The world offers a dark, foreboding future, but God has promised a bright and glorious return. Let's not be caught sleeping, but let's all commit together to ride the wave of God's love into His eternal kingdom.

Dedication

To Mr. Lewellen...

Mr. Jim Lewellen is the kind of administrator who doesn't come along every day. Not only is he tall, good looking, and has a great head of hair, he... Oh wait, that's Mr. Hannah. We want to talk about even greater stuff than all that.

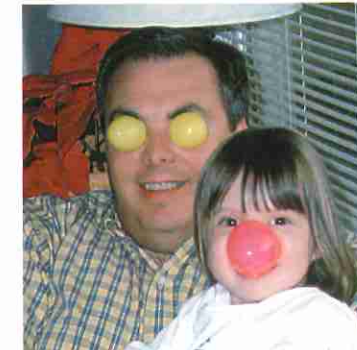

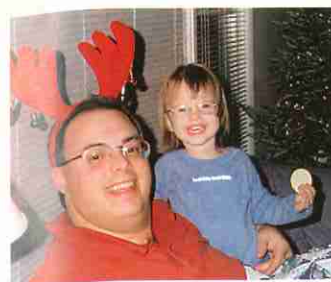

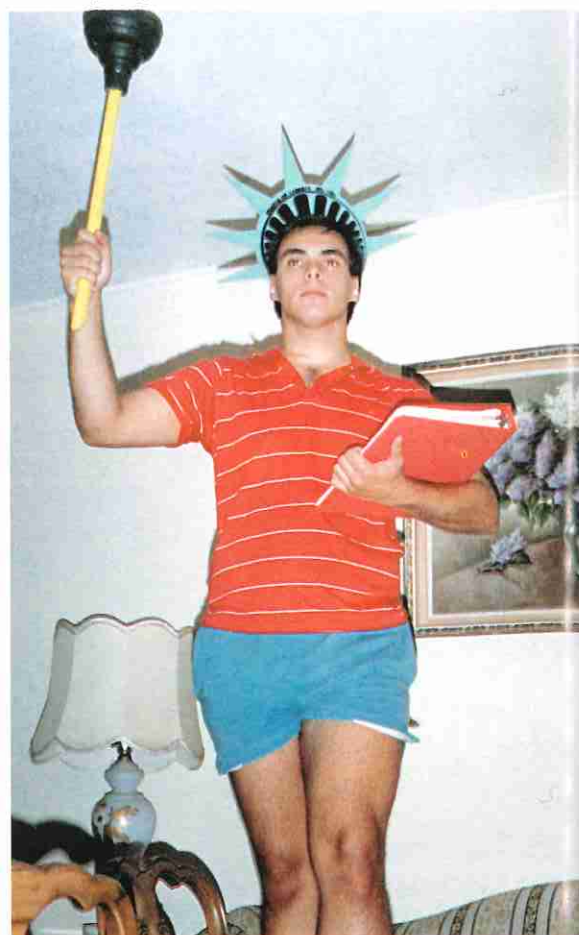

Four years ago Mr. Lewellen came to BMA because God called him here. In fact, that was the only reason Mr. Lewellen came to BMA. Pennsylvania, boarding academy, and the middle of nowhere weren't exactly high on his list of fun times, but God had a plan for Mr. Lewellen. That plan was Blue Mountain Academy.

In just four short years, Mr. Lewellen has touched lives in a way no one else could have. God chose him for the job, and he fits the bill perfectly. He now spends his days as the self-professed "Director of Nothing." However, on top of his many vice-principal responsibilities, Mr. Lewellen still finds time to teach religion, mentor students, give Bible studies, sponsor S.A., and share his home and family with many students.

Those who know Mr. Lewellen know that they've never met anyone like him. His entire heart is dedicated to bringing teenagers to Christ. Over the past four years, many students have learned of Jesus' great love for us through his teaching and example. We thank God that He sent Mr. Lewellen to Blue Mountain Academy.

The Class of 2003 would especially like to thank you, Mr. Lewellen, for all you've done for us. You've been a great teacher and friend, and we'll always be "your class." Now we leave you to another group of freshmen (of your choice), that they also may make you laugh, and that you may help bring them to Christ, as you have us.

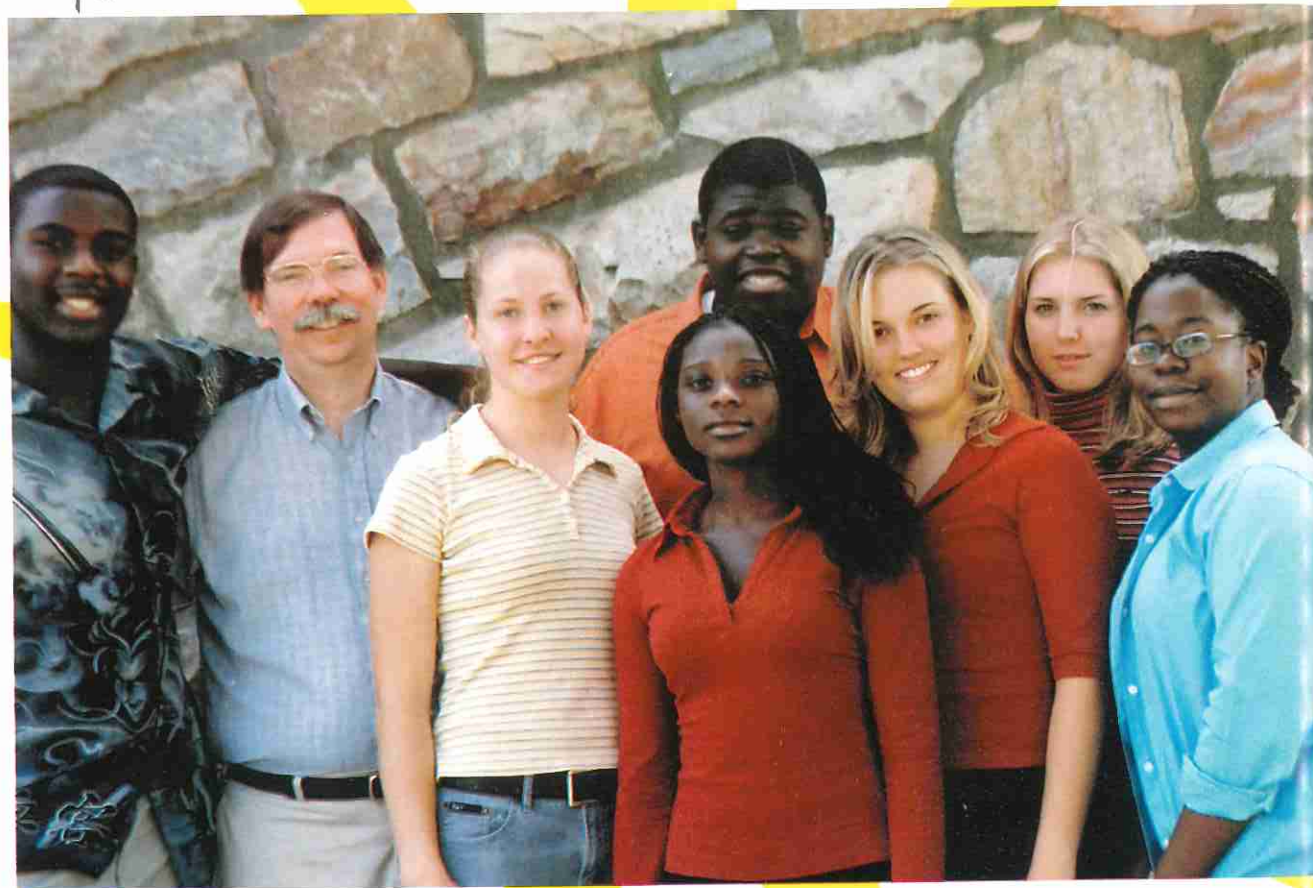

Love always,
The Echoes Staff 2003

Dave on Hockey...

While at rec many people may have noticed a rousing game of hockey going on. The games started on foot and progressed to all-out real-time roller hockey. One player particularly stood out this season. When we asked Dave Zanazanian how he came to play hockey so well, we learned that he has been playing both ice and roller hockey for quite a long time now. Here's what he has to say about hockey.

"My league, BMRH is an outdoor roller hockey league I play in when I'm not here. Most teams have their full line-up for a game, which consists of about 12 players. Year after year our team was always missing players and skating with about 6 guys in 4-man shifts. Though we were always shorthanded, we all pulled together and took on the league to get to the quarterfinals in the playoffs, losing to one of the rougher teams in the division (with a full roster). Although we lost, we still felt a strong sense of accomplishment that we worked harder than any team because of our absence of players."

Dave taught us a great lesson about what intermurals here at BMA can do for us, though perhaps on not such a grand scale. Lessons of hard work, dedication, sportsmanship, and team work are all lessons we learn on the court, the field, and as Dave's told us, playing hockey.

Doing strange things to keep oneself entertained has been a long-time tradition at BMA, as proved by these generations-old stories, passed down to current students!

When my family member and his roomie were here they would always go fishing and then would also walk down into Hamburg to go catch a hamburger. Shh, I didn't tell you that...— Sarah Kozlowski

Mr. Halbrook was perhaps one of the most infamous students BMA has ever known. Ever wonder why the bell doesn't have a clanger? Ask him about dynamite.

Back in the good old days, the pond was used for fishing as it is now. My dad caught a huge bass, took it back to the dorm, let it go in a bathtub full of water, and then convinced the dean that it had come out through the tap. --Jeremy Sterndale

Mrs. Ferguson shared with us that when she was at school here, the students were often taken ice skating. One special rule of the day, however, was that couples must each hold the end of a taut scarf, and skate no closer together than that. (Glad that one's no longer in effect!)

BMA & "Number Nine"

For those of us out there who, on occasion, feel that the organization we know as Blue Mountain Academy does some nonsensical things sometimes, I present evidence for your case. BMA's crazy idiosyncrasies, in fact, are quite a tradition. Would we recognize our home sweet home if something hadn't occurred to make us ask, "Where did that come from?!" Mrs. Kramer shared the following tale with the AP English class, much to our amusement.

Apparently, when Mrs. Kramer attended school here, the Beatles had a hit called "Number Nine." Among the popular administrative myths of the day was a concept called backward masking (the idea that secret messages were being subconsciously absorbed into the mind, and these phrases could be revealed by playing the song in reverse). One day the students were presented with this song played in reverse for their observation. What they beheld was, most effectively put, mumbo-jumbo. Their teachers proceeded to triumphantly announce the "obvious." "See?" they crowed. "They're saying, 'Turn me on, dead man!'" (Mrs. Kramer was quick to add that she now cannot say the words "number nine" without thinking "turn me on, dead man." She says "I wonder if these people have any idea what they did to us.") Naturally, not being in our heads, our staff does not always know our thoughts; nor do we know theirs. The results of these potentially frustrating situations can be quite humorous! --

Tours and school trips are one of the best things about BMA. Many memories are made, to be recorded here:

On the American History trip when we left Jeremy Sterndale in Gettysburg, haha, it would have been funnier if they didn't find out until a week later though.

Staff Candidids

Matt Anderson, the taskforce cafe worker, is very good-natured about being the one to cart heavy food to staff lunch. Known for his ever-present smile and funny jokes, Mr. Anderson makes quite a right hand man for Mr. Allen.

Mrs. Moretta fills many roles at Blue Mountain Academy. She is a second mother to many of the girls, a friend to her students, and a great source of entertainment while practicing one's skills at joking in Spanish.

Being vice-principal is a rough job. Mr. Lewellen's days are spent teaching religion, talking with parents, chairing meetings, preparing official documents, and playing fantasy football.

Mrs. Mathias has set a great example of persistence and hard work to her students as she continues her loving, dedicated teaching throughout her pregnancy. Thanks for your hard work, Mrs. Mathias!

Elder Ferguson is the kind of person you meet once in a lifetime. He makes every student feel special and loved; he also knows how to have a good time sliding down the Ad Building banister.

Mrs. Manente offers her creativity, passion for life, love for students, and great fashion sense to anyone around her who needs a smile.

Mr. Hannah can always be seen doing his best in everything he does, including here, putting a puzzle together on union leadership retreat.

Angela Reager is one of BMA's many miracles. Angela's family was not Adventist, so she was very blessed to be able to spend her elementary school years attending Blue Mountain Elementary. When she graduated 8th grade and looked ahead to her high school years, she knew she wanted to spend them in Adventist education. Throughout her elementary school years at BME, she made many friends and learned a lot; most importantly she learned about and made friends with Jesus, and was baptized into the Seventh-day Adventist Church. Her financial situation made a future at BMA look like an impossibility until just a few short days before school started. After many prayers and the help of loving supporters, Angela found herself registering for school at Blue Mountain Academy. She had these thoughts to share with us:

"I wasn't going to come to BMA because of financial matters, and at the very last minutes God pulled everything together and it ended up that I would be able to come here sponsored... I thank God for it every day... it was the best thing that ever happened to me!"

Angela has enjoyed her first year at Blue Mountain thus far. She finds dorm life peaceful, mentioning that she finds more alone time here than at home with her five siblings, and especially enjoys the close friendships she has formed. God certainly has blessed in her life, sending her a good education, loving family, and supportive friends and sponsors.

Humor can often be just the release we need to help relieve our stress. It's a good thing our staff members can usually help us out in that department! Here are some of our funniest staff memories.

Mr. Lewellen admitting that he doesn't come up w/ things on his own.— Jessica Kraus

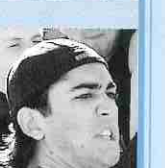

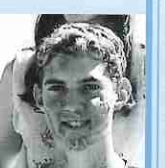

Mr. Anderson calls me Ma.—Heather Brand

Matt Anderson said, "How did all the little children play with the other little children today" — Sarah Kozlowski

We ourselves feel that what we are doing is just a drop in the ocean, but the ocean would be less because of that missing drop.

An RA's work is never done--least of all for a busy guy like Arthur Celestin; when he's not answering the phone, his study halls are spent keeping guys in line.

Levon McCaskill tackles his Algebra homework using his TI calculator.

While working desk, Terrell Davy pages a valuable message to the residents of the guys' dorm.

After a long day of work and school, Billy Kilmer relaxes in the dorm, appearing to be very thankful for the new cell phone policy on campus.

Tyler Walker can often be found spending his free time practicing a song on his guitar.
